As mentioned in the last report, this Committee appointed by the Central Government had prolonged deliberations. Their report was finally submitted to the Government in the year under review. Though the Congress was actually held in the current year, it will not be out of place to mention that it was a success and our delegation has played its own part in bringing our Institute on the International forum.

The Council recognises the invaluable work done by the Council's Secretariat. In the initial stages with a new law and with new problems facing, the staff have done their best and gave always their unstinted co-operation.
